HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

This book provides the basic stats and facts you need to know to start your Pokémon journey. Here's what you'll discover about each Pokémon:

NAME

NUMBER: National Pokédex Number

TYPE: Each Pokémon has a type, and some even have two. (Pokémon with two types are called dual-type Pokémon.) Every Pokémon type comes with advantages and disadvantages.

CATEGORY: All Pokémon belong to a certain category.

DESCRIPTION: Knowledge is power. Pokémon Trainers have to know their stuff. Find out everything you need to know about your Pokémon here.

HOW TO SAY IT: When it comes to Pokémon pronunciation, it's easy to get tongue-tied! There are many Pokémon with unusual names, so we'll help you sound them out. Soon you'll be saying Pokémon names so perfectly, you'll sound like a professor.

HEIGHT AND WEIGHT: How does each Pokémon measure up? Find out by checking its height and weight stats. And remember, good things come in all shapes and sizes. It's up to every Trainer to work with their Pokémon and play up its strengths.

GENDER: Most Pokémon are both male (♂) and female (♀), but some are exclusively one gender or have an Unknown gender.

ABILITIES: Most Pokémon have one Ability that can help them in battle. A Pokémon's Ability usually relates back to its type in one way or another. Some Pokémon have one of two possible Abilities.

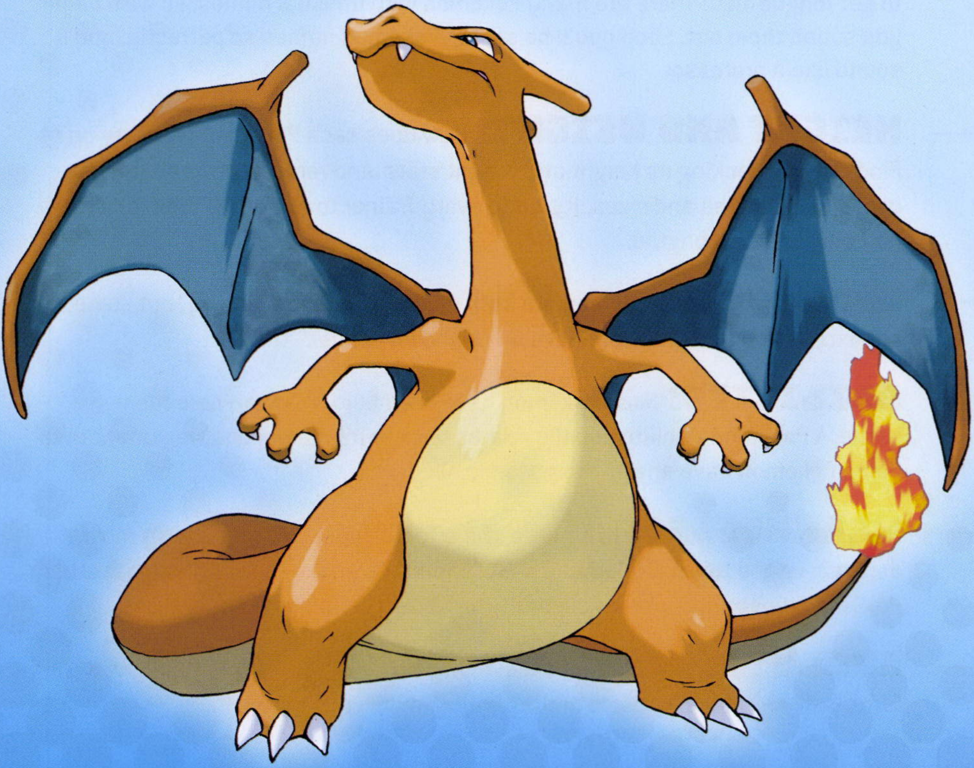
WEAKNESSES: In a battle, the effectiveness of a Pokémon's moves depends on the type of its opponent. A Pokémon's weaknesses show what other Pokémon types will most successfully be able to damage it in an attack!

EVOLUTION: If your Pokémon has an evolved form or pre-evolved form, we'll show you its place in the chain and how it evolves.

GUIDE TO POKÉMON TYPES

A Pokémon's type can tell you a lot about it—from where to find it in the wild to the moves it'll be able to use on the battlefield. Type is the key to unlocking a Pokémon's power.

A clever Trainer should always consider type when picking a Pokémon for a match, because each type shows a Pokémon's strengths and weaknesses. For example, a Fire type may melt an Ice type, but against a Water type, it might find it's the one in hot water. And while a Water type usually has the upper hand in battle with a Fire type, a Water type move would act like a sprinkler on a Grass-type Pokémon. But when that same Grass type is battling a Fire type, it just might get scorched.



HERE ARE THE EIGHTEEN KNOWN POKÉMON TYPES:

FIRE

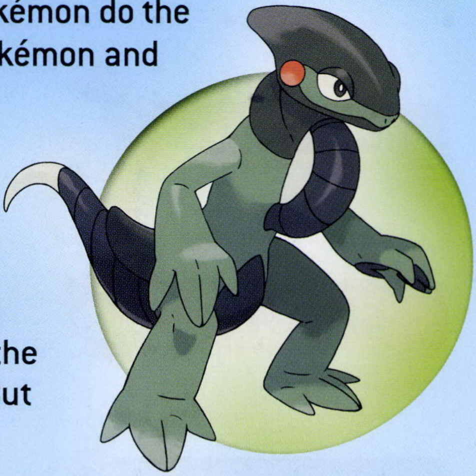
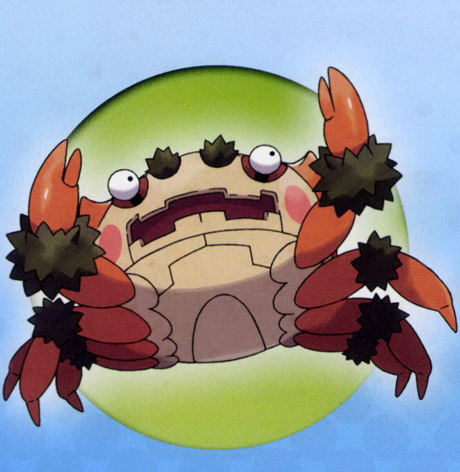
BATTLE BASICS

WHY BATTLE?

There are two basic reasons for a Pokémon to battle. One is for sport. You can battle another Trainer in a friendly competition. Your Pokémon do the fighting, but you decide which Pokémon and which moves to use.



The second reason is to catch wild Pokémon. Wild Pokémon have no training and no owners. They can be found pretty much anywhere. Battle is one of the main ways to catch a Pokémon. But other Trainers' Pokémon are off-limits. You can't capture their Pokémon, even if you win a competition.



CHOOSING THE BEST POKEMON FOR THE JOB

As you prepare for your first battle, you may have several Pokémon to choose from. Use the resources in this book to help you decide which Pokémon would be best. If you're facing a Fire-type Pokémon, like Fuecoco, you can put out its flames with a Water-type Pokémon, like Quaxly.

THE FACE-OFF

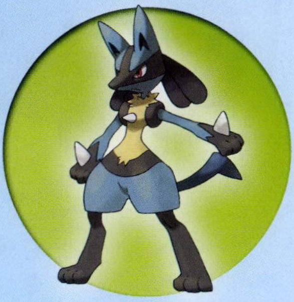
You and your Pokémon will have to face, and hopefully defeat, each and every Pokémon on the other Trainer's team. You win when your Pokémon have defeated all the other Trainer's Pokémon. But Pokémon do not get seriously hurt in battle. If they are defeated, they faint and then return to their Poké Balls to rest and be healed. An important part of a Trainer's job is to take good care of their Pokémon.

MEGA EVOLUTION

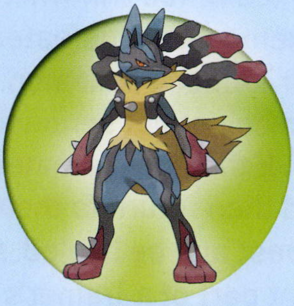
A select group of Pokémon possesses the ability to Mega Evolve. A Pokémon can only Mega Evolve during battle, and Mega Evolution increases its strength in ways no Trainer could imagine.

But Mega Evolution requires more than just capturing a Pokémon of a specific species. First, there must be an incredibly strong bond of trust and friendship between the Trainer and Pokémon. They must be unified on and off the battlefield.

Second, the Trainer must possess both a Key Stone and the right Mega Stone. Each Pokémon species has a specific Mega Stone. A Trainer must quest for the perfect one and prove themself worthy of its power.



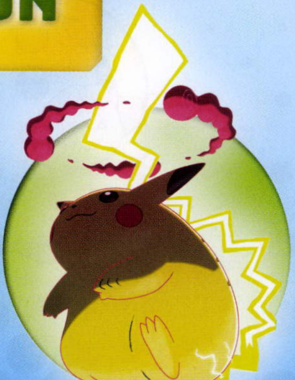
LUCARIO

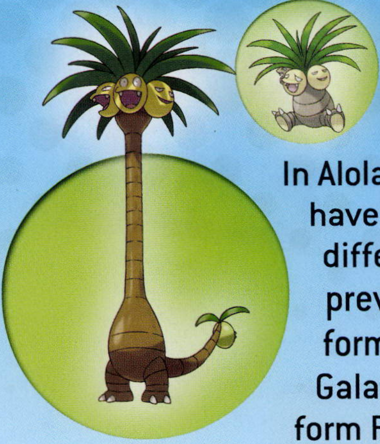


MEGA LUCARIO

GIGANTAMAX POKÉMON

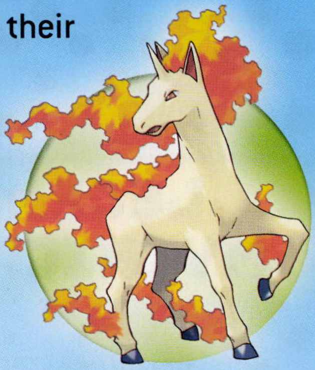
In the Galar region, some Pokémon have a Gigantamax form. It's a special kind of Dynamax that both increases their size and changes their appearance! Gigantamax Pokémon are extremely rare—not every Pokémon of a given species can Gigantamax—and each has access to a special G-Max Move.

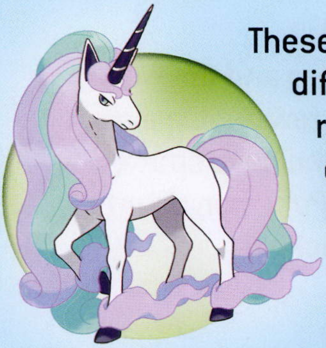




REGIONAL FORMS

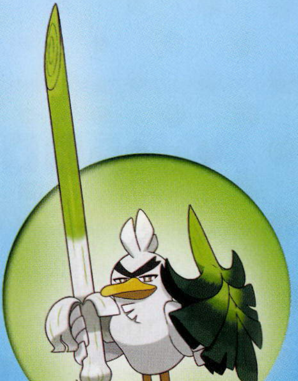
In Alola, Galar, and Paldea, some Pokémon have a unique form that can differ in many ways from their previously discovered form. These Alolan, Galarian, and Paldean form Pokémon may look different, have a different height and weight, be a different type, and use different moves. Each form of Pokémon has its own strengths and weaknesses. A Pokémon and its regional form can seem like two totally different creatures!



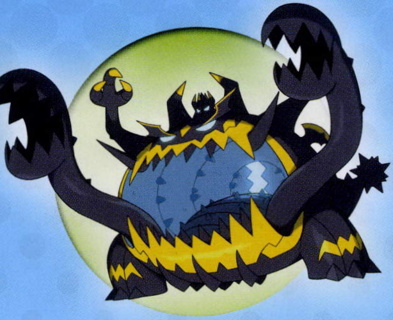


These regional variations develop because of differences in the environments between regions where the Pokémon live. For example, the reason Alolan Exeggutor have grown taller is Alola's warm and sunny climate. It's perfect for Exeggcute and Exeggutor to thrive. Some believe that Alolan Exeggutor is actually the "true" form of the Pokémon!

Some regional forms also evolve into a totally new Pokémon than their previously discovered form does. For example, only Galarian Farfetch'd evolves into Sirfetch'd.

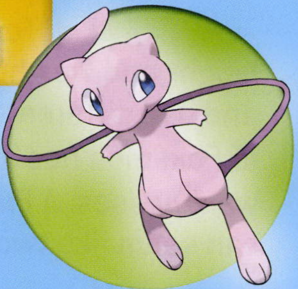


ULTRA BEASTS

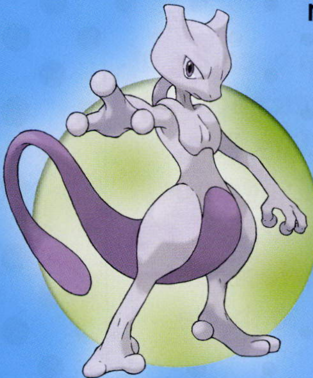


Ultra Beasts possess mighty powers. These mysterious creatures come from Ultra Wormholes.

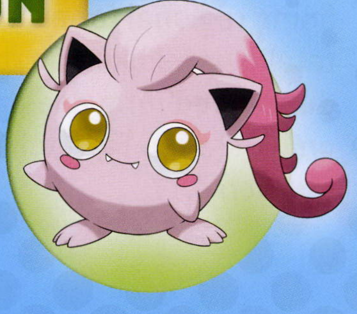
LEGENDARY AND MYTHICAL POKÉMON



These extremely rare and powerful Pokémon are a bit of a mystery. They are unusually strong, and many have had incredible influence. Some have used their power to shape history and the world. And they are so rare that few people ever glimpse them. Trainers who have spotted a Legendary or Mythical Pokémon count themselves among the lucky.



PARADOX POKÉMON



Paradox Pokémon are Pokémon from out of time. Some are from the past, and some are from the future.
